Communists free nine Americans

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP - Nine Americans captured by Communist forces in South Vietnam last spring arrived in Bangkok today along with two Canadians, two Filipinos and an Australian. They were described as "fit

One of the Americans, Paul Struharik, 35, of Barberton, Ohio, a U.S. aid official in Ban Me Thuot, said, "I was captured waving a white flag at my house when I heard them coming through the back gate. The battle for Ban Me Thuot was by that time essentially over. But there were bombs and artillery still going off all over the place."

The 14 civilians were flown from Hanoi to Vientiane, the capital of Laos, and then on to Bangkok in a Laotian plane chartered by the United Nations. U.N. officials said all were "fit and well" although one of the Americans complained of "psychological hardship" during a period of solitary confinement.

The Americans included two missionary couples and the small daugther of one of the couples, two government officials and a student. One of the Filipinos also worked for the U.S. government, ugees.

and the Canadians were missionaries

They were captured in South Vietnam in March and April during the collapse of the South Vietnamese army and the lightning Communist advance. They said they were taken by truck to Hanoi in mid-August and confined near Hanoi.

The American officials were Paul A. Struharik, 35. Barberton, Ohio, an official of the U.S. Agency for International Development; and James Foley Lewis, 31, of Illinois.

The American student was Jay R. Scarborough, 29, of Southern Illinois University.

All of those released today except Lewis were captured in Ban Me Thuot, in the Central Highlands, when the Saigon government abandoned it to the Communists in March. Mrs. Mitchell's husband, Archie, was captured there in 1962 by the Viet Cong and has not been heard of since.

About 40 other Americans are still in South Vietnam. Most of them are believed living in Saigon.

These sources said the returnees told them that after their capture in Ban Me Thuot, they were taken to Thanh Binh, in nearby Pleiku province, and confined in several grass huts for some time.

They said they had a total of 200,000 piasters, or about $300 at the exchange rate before the Communists took over, and their captors allowed them 500 piasters per person a week to buy food and other necessities.

On Aug. 15, they continued, their captors took them on an eight-day journey in covered trucks to Son Tay, a town 25 miles northwest of Hanoi, where they were given antimalaria pills and a medical man was assigned to take care

One of the group had a tooth pulled by the North Vietnamese, who called them "foreigners led to safety by the Liberation Army."

Ex-con surrenders; hostages released

CLEVELAND (AP) - A 56-year-old convict who held six persons hostage for more than 20 hours was taken in custody today by police and the last of the hostages were freed unharmed.

Two hostages were removed on stretchers about 11:30 a.m., and the last four walked out half an hour later.

Edward O. Watkins, the ex-convict who took his hostages after police thwarted his holdup attempt Wednesday afternoon, was brought out by police in handcuffs, a tiny smile on his mustached

Dr. Leakey discovers earlier man

WASHINGTON (AP) - Archeologists seeking the origins of man in East Africa said today they have discovered the oldest known remains of man's ancient ancestors in a dry river bed in Tanzania.

Dr. Mary Leakey, who with her late husband, Louis, began searching for the fossilized remains of man 40 years ago, said the jaws and teeth of eleven individuals had been found.

They have been dated by radioactive dating methods at between 3.35 million years and 3.75 million years old, she said.

"These are good firm dates," Dr. Leakey told a news conference called by the National Geographic Society, which has supported the Leakeys work since 1960.

"They are now the earliest firmly dated hominid remains anywhere in the world," she said. Hominid is a term used to describe manlike creatures.

The specimens first were discovered last Dec. 26 and 27 when Leakey and some colleagues traveled to a region known as Laetolil, about 25 miles south of Olduvia Gorge, site of many famous earlier discoveries.

An expedition returned to the site last summer and the radio dating began at the University of California at Berkeley. The Berkeley dating of minerals found in the same fossil bed with the jaws and teeth are the source of the date.

Moslems, Christians shatter cease-fire

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - Moslem street fighters pushed back Christian gunmen ringing Beirut's downtown hotels today in fierce combat that shattered an announced government cease-A left-wing Palestinian guerrilla official whose troops supported the Lebanese Moslems' attack said Christians from the right-wing Phalangist party militia "have suffered a military defeat." Bassam Abu Sharif of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine made the claim after Moslems and guerrillas overran the Phalangists' last forward outpost and moved into the shadow of the 25-story Holiday Inn, witnesses said. Youths in green fatigues, armed with Soviet-made AK-47 assault rifles and backed by .50 caliber machine guns, poured through the Qantari district on a downhill run toward the 500-room hotel, already pocked by bullets and scarred by rocket hits and fire.

"Tonight we'll move ahead," a Moslem gunman boasted to an Associated Press photographer following their advance. "This was just a probe."

A spokesman for the 6,000-man Phalange militia said Christian forces still controlled the Holiday Inn and the Phoenicia, a neighboring 500-room hotel.

The Phalangists also occupied the plush St. George's Hotel on the waterfront - where rich Lebanese and foreigners used to eat oysters flown live from France - after another Christian militia pulled out and the hotel staff fearfully ran up a white flag.

Warring Moslems and Christians were earlier reported to have agreed to a gradual pullback so security forces in armored cars could establish a buffer zone by nightfall.

Armored cars were seen patrolling Clemenceau street, in the heart of Qantari, which overlooks the city's principal seaside tourist hotels. But hard fighting continued in many other parts of the city despite another cease-fire announced late Wednesday by Premier Rashid Karami reportedly told associates he as making his last attempt to negotiate a cease-fire. He reportedly said he has not given up yet, despite the continuing fighting, but would resign if a truce did not take hold soon.

Security officials reported 57 more dead and 75 wounded in the past 24 hours.

Associated Press newsman Aly Mahmoud reported from Ein Mreisseh that fierce exchanges of fire broke out in that seaside district near the U.S. Embassy three hours after Karami's ceasefire announcement.

Warhead falls: no radiation

MERCURY, Nev. (AP) — A cannister containing a small nuclear warhead accidentally fell 40 feet to the bottom of a shaft it was being lowered into, causing minor injuries to 11 Nevada Test Site workers but leaking no radiation, officials said today.

David Miller, a spokesman for the federal Energy Research and Development Administration, said the accident occurred Oct. 23 at Yucca Flat about 30 miles north of here.

The warhead, with a designed yield of less than 20 kilotons, was to have been detonated in a test code-named "Peninsula." The warhead did not detonate nor leak radiation and there was no danger that it could detonate, Miller

Fairfax, veterinarian disagree on mutilation case

Sheriff Emmett Fairfax and Dr. James R. Waddell, 2416 South Quincy, who covers this district for the state veterinarian's office, disagree in their opinions about one of three cases of reported cattle mutilation in the past few days.

Waddell said Wednesday he thinks the cattle involved in all three alleged mutilation cases were attacked by predatory animals following deaths by natural causes.

However, Fairfax said Thursday morning he still believes some person was involved in one of the cases before the carcass was disturbed by predators.

One of the first two reported cases of cattle mutilation in this area was discovered about 4 p.m. Monday on the Julian H. Bagby farm, located about 11/2 miles northeast of Green Ridge.

W. C. Askew, manager of the farm, said the animal was found by Kevin Eilks, a herdsman for the farm, and had last been seen alive by Eilks last Thursday.

Originally the bull's sex organ was reported removed. However, Fairfax said Wednesday afternoon the organ was in its natural position between the membrane and hide of the animal, and due to the animal's bloated condition had not been discovered during the preliminary investigation. Only the organ's sheath was actually missing from the animal when first discovered, it was learned. Fairfax said he did not believe the sheath was removed from the carcass by predators. Rather, Fairfax said the wound

NEW YORK (AP) - A unique self-examination seems to be under way among some of the nation's top corporations as they seek to reidentify their capabilities and goals in an age of drastic

To some extent the innerdirectedness seems to be a reaction similar to that identified in individuals who seek to recover from traumatic experiences be redefining their identities.

The result of the introspection, predicts Eugene Jennings, an authority on business management, will be to make much stronger in the 1980s some of the companies that have suffered the most from, among other things, the shortages, market changes and governmental restraints of the 1970s.

TV stations 2-1 against longer news

By JAY SHARBUTT AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - Aside from a bigger budget, network news executives have a dream: To expand their current 30-minute evening news programs on TV to an hour, or at least 45 minutes, each week night.

But a recent survey by Dr. Charles S. Steinberg, a former CBS vice-president for public information, shows the dream may remain just that unless network affiliates have a radical change of heart.

Steinberg, now a communications teacher at Hunter College here, sent a questionnaire to 235 network affiliates that sought, among other things, their views on a longer network evening news program.

He says of 124 stations responding, 80 opposed lengthening nightly network news shows, while only 44 favored expanding the programs.

The study doesn't say why there is such opposition. It's generally because the stations want the time for their own local news programs or for entertainment programs of their own.

Steinberg also queried the affiliates on a more controversial matter - the new, two-hour "family viewing" period intended to reduce sex and violence on TV early at night when young viewers are

He asked if the affiliates thought the new period desirable and if they felt it would tend to "elevate standards of programming."

A total of 120 stations replied to the first question. Seventy-one thought the family viewing period of entertainment programming desirable, while 49 thought it

Of 110 stations responding to the second question, 76 felt the family viewing concept wouldn't elevate programming standards, while the minority, 34 stations, felt it

Controlled heat

At wit's end

By ERMA BOMBECK Sometimes I think there is an underground movement at work in this country to destroy the institution of marriage. First, it was the joint checking account that was a declaration of war for millions of couples. Then, the dual control electric blanket which was responsible for dissolving another million or so marriages. This was followed by the unleashing of Tom Jones whose swiveling hips tore couples apart who previously thought they were happy watching Donnie Osmond. Now it seems marriage is to be dealt another challenge ... the electric mattress.

The electric mattress reportedly will provide separate heat controls for three different sections of the body — the head, middle and legs, and will make it possible to sleep in comfort with only a sheet over your body on the coldest winter nights.

My husband was ecstatic over the idea. "Boy, does that sound terrific," he said. "Imagine. Controlled heat without all those heavy blankets and quilts to wrestle. When was the last time you slept with only a sheet over you?"

"Last night. As usual, you hogged all the covers.' "I hogged what?" he said evenly. "I don't believe this. I got up to get a drink of water and when I came back you looked like a tent that had just been staked to the ground. I spent the entire night perched on the bedrail.' "Don't complain. If I hadn't had a nip of anti-freeze before bedtime, my pipes would have frozen.'

"Well, I happen to think an electric mattress might be the answer to our sleeping problems," he insisted.

'You might be right," I said, "but who would have custody of the controls?"

"I consider myself a reasonable human being who can assess what temperature is proper to maintain comfort without excess. "Don't give me that." I said "You are the cheapo who taped up the electrical outlets because you said we were losing heat." "Be fair!" he snapped: "Do you know how many women have the coldest feet in the sas Bureau of Investigation we learned that every case they have investigated this year pointed to natural death.

"But all of the evidence is not in and I hesitate to go out on a limb this early and say we have the absolute answer. Part of the problem is that it is difficult for the vets to get a clear picture of what happened without the whole body-and you can't put a dead cow in the trunk of a patrol car."

In some cases, however, the predator theory is not borne out by the evidence, indicating to Capt. Maddox that there may be some cases where humans were

"People keep reading about these things and hearing about them from friends," the officer said. "It's not impossible that some people might say 'Hey, let's go out and do it too" just for kicks and to stir up a commotion. It could be like any other fad."

Whatever the cause of the mutilations, the attention they have received has caused concern and sometimes even fright among many rural Missourians.

We don't know what to think," said Ernest G. Dodd, sheriff of Shelby County in northeastern Missouri. "And I'll tell you it's starting to shake people up. They're so shook up that they're starting to see flying saucers." Sheriff Dodd said the most recent flying saucer report he investigated turned out to be a rising

"The kids found it Saturday morning," Mrs. Rosendale said. "Animals had been at it so we really couldn't tell what it died of. The thing that bothers me is that one ear was missing and it hadn't been chewed off-it was a clean cut. I try not to think about it."

Dr. Woods said he hoped his and the highway patrol's investigation will calm the fears reports of mutilations have

"We can't say we are certain at this stage," he said, "but we believe it's all a natural thing. As a rule, farmers in Missouri lose about 3 per cent of their cattle to disease each year and we haven't seen any hikes in the death rate that could be attributed to any sort of ritual killings."

Senate panel approves aid bill for New York

Banking Committee today approved a bill with $4 billion in loan guarantees for New York City and sent the measure to an uncertain fate on the Senate floor and a threatened presidential veto.

On an 8-to-5 vote the committee approved what was a compromise measure between Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., and the panel's chairman, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., that would put the city on a spartan fiscal regime to balance its budget and to prevent it from defaulting on its obligations Dec. 1.

Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., tried to persuade the committee to go along with a substitute measure by Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., which would have allowed the city to default but which would provide guaranteed debt certificates called for by President Ford in his speech Wednesday.

Tower said that the committee, in essence, was wasting its time in approving the loan guarantee measure.

The only Democrat to vote against sending the loan guarantee measure to the floor was Sen. Thomas Morgan, D-N.C., and the only Republican to vote in favor of it was Sen. Robert Packwood of

Before the vote, the committee unanimously adopted an amendment by Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., which would increase the fee the city would have to pay the federal government for the right to issue tax-exempt notes from 3 per cent to 3.5 per cent of the total

Stevenson, during the debate on whether to approve the loan guarantee measure, said President Ford in his speech Wednesday proposed what amounted to be "the largest bailout of

"To veto this proposal, the President would have to veto his own proposal," Stevenson said.

Commenting on the likelihood of a presidential veto, Proxmire said that "I've seen presidents turn around before. Nixon turned around on a dime on the subject of price control."

Prior to the Senate Banking Committee's vote, Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said that New York City has not tapped all possible sources of funding to meet its debts and he suggested an increase in sales taxes or loans based on employe pension funds.

New York officials already have tax and loan plans under consideration.

Testifying before the House economic stabilization subcommittee, which is expected to draft a bill to aid New York and report it to the full Banking Committee, Simon suggested New York State could increase its sales tax by as much as three per cent — to 11 per cent — to obtain funds for the city on a temporary, emergency basis.

Congressional backers of legislation to save New York City from default say they are going ahead with their bills, even though they don't have the strength to override a promised presidential veto.

In a speech Wednesday at the National Press Club, President Ford said, "I can tell you now that I am prepared to veto any bill that has as its purpose a federal bail-out of New York City to prevent a default.

After Ford's talk, congressional supporters of federal aid for New York said they see less hope of getting government monetary help to the troubled city before it defaults on its obligations.

Meanwhile, city, state and union officials acknowledged a plan is being considered to save the city from default by borrowing $4 billion against municipal union pension funds.

Under the proposal, $8.5 billion in assets in the funds would be used to guarantee loans that could restructure the city's finances for up totwo years.

While it could make federal aid unnecessary, the plan might face legal pro-

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate blems. Under the law, the pension funds cannot have more than five per cent of their assets in one investment. However, one union official said he felt the legal difficulties could be surmounted through state legislation.

House Majority Leader Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., said that while he thinks there are enough votes to get an aid bill out of committee and for the House to possibly pass it, there are not enough votes to override a veto.

Another supporter, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said the veto threat makes Senate passage "more difficult."

Ford proposed amending federal bankruptcy laws to keep creditors from tying up the city's finances in lawsuits if the city defaults. He said he still believes New York officials can prevent default, though some of those officials say the city may be unable to pay its debts as early as Nov. 14.

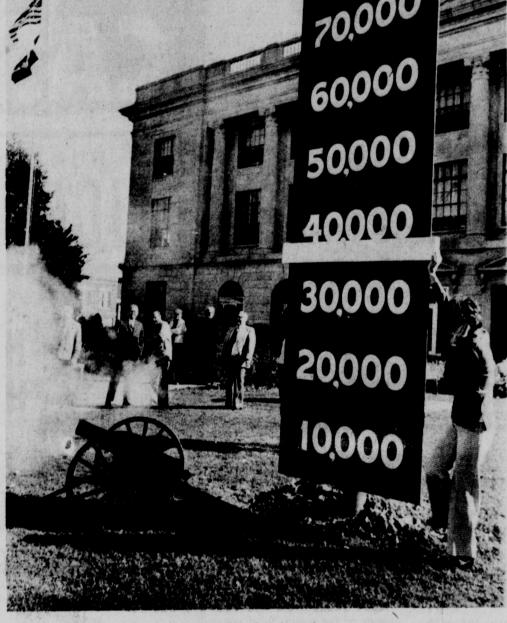

Ford said his plan would ensure police and fire protection and other essential services if New York City defaults.

In his speech, Ford asked, "Why ... should all the working people of this country be forced to rescue those who bankrolled New York City's policies for so long - the large investors and big banks?

He said creditors, such as banks, would suffer some temporary difficulties if New York City defaults but they would "not be wiped out." He said he thought the financial markets already had made considerable adustment to the possibiliy of default.

A presidential aide, L. William Seidman, did not rule out that some federal aid could be made available to the city in the event of a default if other revenues could not maintain essential services.

Ford also scored "scare talk" by some officials and bankers to "frighten the American people and their representatives in Congress into panicky support of patently bad policy."

Many to pay more Social Security tax

WASHINGTON (AP) - If you earn over $14,100 next year, you'll be paying up to $70.20 more in Social Security tax-

The government announced Wednesday that it will levy Social Security taxes on the first $15,300 of your earnings beginning next Jan. 1, up from the $14,000 taxable wage base this year.

The result will be that an estimated 18 million workers will be paying higher Social Security taxes next year, to a maximum of $895.05 or $70.20 more than this year. Their employers will pay a like

Self-employed persons will pay a maximum of $1,208.70 next year, up $94.80.

Family is asking $500,000 in damages

A $500,000 damage suit was filed in Circuit Court late Wednesday afternoon by Rita Klara Schwenk, 2406 West First, and her children, David Warren and Kent William Schwenk, against Roman Louis Valek and Dart Transit Co., a Minnesota corporation.

Mrs. Schwenk filed the suit as the result of her husband's death on Nov. 4, 1974, from injuries sustained in an auto accident near the Highway 65 and Business 65 intersection, just south of Marshall.

Mrs. Schwenk's petition claims that careless driving by Valek, who was driving a truck owned by Dart Transit, caused his vehicle to strike the rear of another northbound car in which her husband was a passenger.

Social Security Commissioner James B. Cardwell said the heavier tax on workers "will mean higher benefits for them and their families in the event of retirement, disability or death than would have been possible without an increase in the base.

"In return for the increase in taxes, these affected workers will have greater protection becase a larger amount of their earnings will be credited toward benefits than before."

The base increase, mandated by law and based on a formula gauging the average wage increase, also raises the limit on outside income that retirees can earn without losing some Social Security

The government estimates that about 1.3 million retirees will benefit by the 1976 provision allowing them to earn $2,760 in outside income, a $240 increase over this year. Every $2 earned over that limit will result in a $1 reduction in Social Security payments.

Franco's condition worsens

MADRID, Spain (AP) - Generalissimo Francisco Franco's condition has worsened again, the Spanish news agency Europa Press reported today.

The agency said its information came from reliable sources. A medical bulletin was awaited from Franco's doctors.

Meanwhile. Premier Carlos Arias Navarro called his cabinet into session amid reports that Prince Juan Carlos de Borbon, Franco's designated political heir, has agreed to become chief of state temporarily.

Reliable sources said the 37-year-old prince, who had previously refused to step in on a temporary basis, gave in to intense pressure from the government.

Franco's doctors said the 82-year-old dictator had a peaceful night although his condition remained "extremely grave.' The doctors said there was no change in the clinical condition reported Wednesday night.

Maine's Gov. Longley battles through first months

EDITOR'S NOTE - Gov. James B. Longley has done battle with women's groups, the press, state employes, the University of Maine and many others. Some say he's aggressive, domineering, and difficult to work with. Others say he's a prince.

By PAT SHERLOCK Associated Press Writer AUGUSTA, Maine (AP) -While most American governors are happy to grab what federal largesse they can get, James B. Longley has been turning away federal grants as fast as they're offered.

It's not the only unusual angle about the 51-year-old governor of Maine. He's the only one in the country without political affiliation.

He's had 10 stormy months in office since his unexpected election as an independent over Republican and Democratic candidates. He believes Americans are overgoverned, and he's been trying to cut down on government for the people of Maine.

Longley has turned away at least a dozen offers of federal grants — from money for law enforcement to money for hospital construction — and has declined to spend other federal money already allocated; for example, a $100,000 grant to finance a feasibility study for producing methanol (a substitute for heating oil) from wood.

New York governor also snubs Sadat

NEW YORK (AP) - Gov. Hugh Carey joined Mayor Abraham Beame in snubbing President Anwar Sadat of Egypt today, leaving the burden of New York hospitality on the shoulders of Vice President and Mrs. Nelson A.

Sadat was to meet this morning with Thomas Murphy, chairman of the board of General Motors. Then he and his wife were to motor to the palatial Rockefeller estate in Pocantico Hills, north of the city. for lunch.

The New York schedule announced for Sadat by the State Department also included a meeting with Gov. Carey this morning, but a spokesman for the governor said this had

Court orders hearing delay in Debro case

ST. LOUIS (AP) - Hearings on whether doctors can be ordered to unhook artificial lifesupport systems keeping Judith Ann Debro alive have been postponed until next week.

Now set for Tuesday morning before the Missouri Court of Appeals, the hearings are to determine whether a St. Louis County circuit judge's ruling that he did not have authority to order the machines turned off should be reversed.

Mrs. Debro's husband Gary had asked the court to issue an order to authorize doctors to turn off the machines which have kept his wife alive since she was critically injured in an automobile wreck Oct. 16.

Mrs. Debro has been in a coma since the accident and doctors have said she exhibits no measurable brain activity. In addition to the appeal to the Missouri appeals court, the attorney for Debro said a parallel suit will also be filed in federal court because of the case's "landmark proportions."

Some relatives of Mrs. Debro have expressed opposition to having the machines turned off.

Carey's spokesman said the governor went to see the Egyptian president to express his strong opposition to the U.N. resolution and to ask him to repudiate it. Sadat was flying this afternoon to Chicago for a 20-hour stay. Mayor Richard Daley is giving a dinner for the visitor tonight, but Gov. Daniel Walker of Illinois will not be present due to a "previous engagement."

Sadat, in a speech to the U.N. General Assembly Wednesday, asked the world organization to help get the Middle East peace conference in Geneva going again, insisted that the Palestine Liberation Organization participate in the conference and made veiled threats of another Arab-Israeli war unless Israel

He believes that a state can go broke accepting too much federal assistance.

'Too often states begin programs with federal dollars and then are left to continue these programs with state funds after the government backs out." Longley said during an interview. So he has shied away from grants for new projects, but does accept large sums of federal money for highways and for educa-

At the state level, Longley has cut from his biennial budget more than $6.9 million in services formerly provided to the towns and cities; among them welfare assistance, snowplowing and road maintenance. He says that if the people really want more local control, this is a good way to start. Because of his action, many municipalities have been forced to increase their budgets to continue these services.

Longley sees his philosophy of local autonomy as more than just a money saving device. He says it will help to renew "the volunteer spirit in America." The governor argues, for example, that friends, neighbors and churches once helped parents care for their children, but now impersonal public day care centers do the job. Longley is a super-active, athletic-looking man, thin, balding, with a drawn look about his face and bright blue eyes. He was a wealthy businessman who decided last year to run for governor and then resigned from the Democratic party shortly after launching his campaign. He charged that the partisan system discriminates against people who want to run as independents.

In the business world, Longley was known as a hard-driving insurance salesman who regularly sold over $1 million a year. He also acted as a consultant and as a director of banks and hospitals. Politically, he was unknown, and he spent little money on a campaign whose principal theme was cutting the costs of government. So his victory last November over Republican James Erwin and Democrat George Mitchell surprised nearly everyone. Longley took office Jan. 2, succeeding a Democrat, and almost immediately started fighting with the Republicancontrolled Senate and the Democratic House. He became the first governor in 20 years to have a veto overridden - and the last being Edmund S. Muskie who had vetoed a gasoline tax increase.

The legislature then went on to override 13 more of Longley's 26 vetoes. In Maine's history, no other governor has vetoed so many bills, or had so many vetoes overridden.

Longley has done battle with women's groups (some say he's a male chauvinist), the press (he says the media is inaccurate and hostile). state employes (he opposed pay raises for them, froze hiring and banned out-of-state travel), the University of Maine trustees (he cut their budget proposal), and the all-Democratic Executive Council, required by law to confirm the governor's appoint-

"It's been a humbling experience," Longley says. But his various conflicts are not as frequent or explosive now as they were in the early days of his administration. And he believes that 10 miles outside this state capital, there are thousands of voters who support him.

"I'm not trying to make popular decisions," he says. "I am trying to make decisions that are right.'

-AC -Oil, Air, Gas Filters The AUTOMOTIVE, Inc. 827-3750

Until a recent illness, the governor frequently rose before dawn, jogged one or two miles, and went to a factory gate to greet workers. The factory gate is something Longley discovered during the campaign, and he considers it an excellent way to keep in touch with the people.

He still frequents working class diners, and likes to feel he is close to Maine's working people — a silent mooring to his Depression-era childhood in Lewiston where his father worked as a streetcar conductor and raised five children.

The governor also has five children - three daughters and two sons - and he jealously guards the hours he spends with them and the privacy of his family life.

Longley continues to be a puzzle to both his enemies and his closest supporters. Some department heads have found him aggressive. domineering and generally difficult to work with. Others say he's a prince.

To some, he's the driving executive who demands perfection from his staff and occasionally behaves like a tyrant. To others he's the governor who left the official residence one sub-zero morning last winter and helped a janitor change a tire.

He recently flew to a remote section of rugged Maine woods to comfort the parents of a missing four-year-old boy, ordered the National Guard to remain at the scene searching and then returned that weekend with his wife to personally participate in the

Facing the pumpkin challenge

Halloween may be a time for ghosts and goblins and all that scary stuff, but there is also the more wordly problem of what kind of face to put on the family pumpkin. To help, artists Barbara Theobold and Jim Hummel designed these faces for your carving pleasure. Just match up the shape of your pumpkin and carve away.

(AP Wirephoto Drawing)

To most Americans. Halloween would not be the same without pumpkins and jack-o'-lanterns. However, the custom of making jack-o'-lanterns originated in Scotland long before pumpkins had been introduced into that area from Central and South America. Halloween dates back to the Celts of Britain and Northern France. It was believed that on Oct. 31 the spirits of all ancestors arose and congregated for assignments during the coming year. Anyone who went out on that night carried a lantern protection.

In Scotland it was the custom to hollow out large turnips or rutabagas and place candles inside them. Originally holes were put only in the sides to emit light, but these later became faces, possibly to scare off evil spirits

One explanation for the name "jack-o'-lantern" for these facebearing lanterns comes from an Irish legend. This story tells of a man named Jack who was so mean, stingy and tricky that after he died he went to the devil. However, he was so bad that even the devil didn't want him. When he arrived, Jack was eating a turnip. The devil threw him a burning coal and said, "Put this inside the turnip you are eating. This will be your lantern." The story goes that to this day Jack can be seen on Halloween, carrying his lantern bruised. Bruises do not heal and still looking for a place to over and only invite the start of

When the early settlers came to America, turnips did not grow as large, and pumpkins were very common in fall. These pumpkins didn't have to be hollowed out and were much more showy. Thus, the tradition gradually changed to the form we know today.

Another legend, obviously arising with the use of the pumpkin, says that at midnight on Halloween all pumpkins leave their vines and dance across the fields.

The pumpkin selected for a jack-o'-lantern should be well formed and sit solidly. Pumpkins that tend to sway or topple over are a greater fire hazard when candles are used. In most cases a small light bulb or battery powered light is much safer for lighting a pumpkin than a candle. If candles are used, those held in a glass container that is short and squatty are more solid and safer. Cut holes or slits along the edge of the top or "lid" of the pumpkin to allow heat to escape more rapidly.

With abundance of pumpkins, you may want to keep some for Thanksgiving or Christmas. To make sure that they will last

Pumpkins are U.S. Halloween custom

If any scrapes or scratches have occurred in handling, these can be healed over by proper curing to prevent entrance of rot organisms. For best results keep the pumpkins in temperatures of 80 to 85 degrees for about 10 days. A spot close to the furnace is often satisfactory. At the end of that time any cuts should have calloused over and sealed the wound shut.

moved to a cooler location, but well above freezing. A range between 50 and 60 degrees is best. Frost does not help the pumpkin; therefore, freezing temperatures should be avoided

The pumpkins should then be for longest storage life. If kept at temperatures above degrees, however, the flesh will lose moisture and become stringy. The surface of the fruit should be kept dry at all times during storage.

Polly's pointers

Buy in bulk to save cash

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY - Money can be saved by buying larger quantities of things that are frequently used. We buy gallon size cans of cooking oil and then transfer what we need to a smaller container. For a "daily use container" for this cooking oil we use an item that was previously just discarded - the plastic bottle that pancake syrup comes in. The nodrip, push-pull spout really works beautifully, and allows one to measure out any needed amount of oil without it dripping down the neck. This surely makes for less mess in the kitchen. Try it - you will like it, too. - JAN.

DEAR POLLY - Many of us will soon be baking fruit cakes for holiday gifts. Buy round cans with lids, line with foil, grease well and bake the cakes in them as called for in the recipe. After a cake has cooled remove the foil, wrap cake in new foil or plastic wrap, return to the can and put on the cover. I have done this for years and it saves looking for a container after the cake is baked and it fits the can to a T .-

Polly's note - Why not save coffee cans that come with plastic lids and use them for this? - POLLY.

DEAR POLLY - If one has careless children, or even grown-ups, who spill milk, soft drinks or alcohol on the carpet, generously sprinkle salt on the wet area. When dry vacuum and have no stain. (Polly's note: This is also recommended for wet pet spots on carpets.) — DEBBIE V.

DEAR POLLY - Instead of buying packaged bread crumbs I make my own in the blender. The bread crumbles easier if it is first toasted and the crumbs stay fresher longer, too. - MRS. F.G.

DEAR POLLY - Mine is an energy saving Pointer. My oven instructions say it takes only ten minutes to preheat the over to 350. Like most cooks I turn the oven on first thing, so as to pre-heat it. I noticed today that it took me almost half an hour to get the cake ready to go in the oven (phone calls, getting things together, etc.). So, this meant the oven was preheating twenty minutes longer than need be. Now I turn the oven on approximately in the middle of preparation time thus saving a few kilowatts of energy. I have an electric stove but the same idea would save gas for those with gas stoves. -MRS. P.S.

DEAR POLLY — Our baby's allergist said I should stop thought I really had a problem. However when I solved part of the problem I was saving money at the same time. One solution was to cut the daily newspaper down the center fold and then across the middle. When cleaning I use two pieces of the paper on windows, mirrors and any glass. I wet one piece for the cleaning and then polish with the dry one. Finger prints are gone and I have a beautiful clean job with no smell. The papers are kept neatly stored in a rack on a cabinet door. - BEV.

DEAR POLLY - I save money spent on buying bird seed by drying and storing melon seeds during the summer. I then put them in the bird feeder in the winter. The birds like them as well as sun flower seeds. - MRS. H.J.M.

Inflation fighter

DEAR READERS - The above letters concern ways readers are meeting the high costs of inflation by conserving, salvaging and generally making do. One small saving may not seem worth worrying about but multiplied by millions it really adds up. - POLLY.

Oil nations account for only 3 per cent

WASHINGTON (AP) - Despite fears that oil-rich countries would use their new wealth to gobble up U.S. companies, the latest government statistics show that oil cartel nations account for only 3 per cent of foreign investments in the United States.

The figures released Tuesday also showed there has been a big increase in foreign investment in the United States in recent years, much more than was estimated previously by the government.

The reports showed that the big overseas investors are the same nations that traditionally have invested here — the United Kingdom, Canada, Switzerland, The Netherlands, France, Germany and Japan.

Congress last year directed the Treasury and Commerce departments to make new studies of the amount of foreign investment after widespread fears were voiced in Congress and elsewhere that oil-exporting nations, especially some of those in the Middle East, might use their new wealth to buy up key American industries.

But the Commerce Depart-

said "the total direct investment of these countries in the United States is exceedingly small" and the Treasury Department said portfolio investments by members of the Organization of Petroleum

Exporting Countries were

"relatively small," accounting for 3 per cent of the total. However, a Treasury Department official acknowledged at a news briefing that some of the investments from Switzerland and other European nations could include investments made for ment report issued Tuesday OPEC nations under the cover of European banks.

> The government reports distinguished between portfolio foreign investment and direct foreign investment.

Portfolio investment means foreigners have not acquired significant influence in the stocks, bonds and government securities they own. Direct foreign investment, which has been primarily in the manufacturing and petroleum industries, means the foreign investors have acquired at least 10 per cent of the firm they have invested in.

Learning how to retire

By JOY STILLEY AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - When Alan Olmstead faced retirement three years ago he thought it was going to be "a death sentence." Now, at age 68, he says he has found it was "the start of a second life."

"I was scared to death. I never wanted to retire," the gray-haired, tanned former newspaper editor admitted in an interview. "All my life there were things that had to be done - a cow in the barn that had to be milked or a blank space on an office page that had to be filled.

"I was afraid I might not have the capacity to keep myself fit and active; afraid I might go sloppy in my routines, get lazy, lie abed late mornings.'

As an antidote to these fears Olmstead resolved to keep some kind of form in his life, to put on a tie even if he wasn't going to make a public appearance, to spend time in his den in front of a typewriter, "whether I accomplished anything or not."

And what he learned, he reports, is that like many retirees with whom he's talked he is busier than during his working years.

One of the activities that filled up the first days at home was a diary, in which he recorded his daily experiences and sensations and aired "all my own petty affections, grudges and disaffections and things I really believed in." The diary has just been published as a book called "Threshold: The First Days of Retirement." That threshold is one that leads into, rather than out of. Olmstead explains. "As you cross it you are looking forward to a new experience, though not an endless experience because, after all, the old stop sign is there all the time. But it is a new phase in life, the final phase - which is one reason for having as much fun with it as you can."

Olmstead, vital-looking and neatly dressed in checked jacket and striped tie, is quick to point out that he is not the typical "pensioner," a word he uses to describe his current status only because he dislikes it less than he dislikes golden ager, senior citizen and other common

"I am a fortunate instance, not a typical instance, but some of my experiences are typical and ring bells with others," he says. "The only flickering worry I had which resolved itself - outside of the whole worry of whether I could cope with the state of retirement, was financial.

Not only is Olmstead now "having a ball" in his retirement, but he feels it would be even better if people could retire earlier than 65, to have They have three daughters more time to spend in their "so-called second life."

"It offers options toward completing and rounding out a life, enjoying the things you always wanted to do and never quite did, having time for questionings of yourself and reaching certain conclusions, challenging yourself to see if you have the ingenuity to devise new patterns of interest or extensions of old patterns of interest."

The former editor of the Manchester, Conn., Herald, who still syndicates a thriceweekly column on state politics, suggests that those nearing retirement should seek possible openings and uses for their proficiencies.

"Lots of people solve many problems quite satisfactorily by adopting some hobby they only gave a flick of their mind to throughout their active life," he points out.

He and his 66-year-old wife live in a large country house in Manchester, where in addition to writing he gardens, mows the lawn, raises Christmas trees and "occasionally when our arthritis and other mortal signs permit, we play tennis."

and three grandsons.

"For my part, at least, I've enjoyed being in the same house more hours than had been possible before," Olmstead declares. "I have found new nuances of relationships that have been very pleasant."

Area hospital engineers to hold meeting

Harold L. Vestal, director of plant services at Bothwell Hospital, is in charge of the program for hospital engineers at the Missouri Hospital Association convention next week at Osage Beach.

The program will explore how energy shortages will affect state hospitals and consider measures to cope with the problem. Earl D. Dwyer, Kansas City, senior vice president of the Missouri Public Service Co., will be the speaker.

Vestal is president-elect of the Missouri Society for Hospital Engineers.

The convention runs from Monday through Wednesday.

Steven Soliah arraigned on bank robbery charge

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) - Steven Soliah, free of a charge that he harbored fugitive Patricia Hearst, faces a possible death sentence in connection with a bank robbery and murder last April.

The stocky, 27-year-old housepainter, believed to have been Miss Hearst's lover, was arraigned Wednesday on a charge of bank robbery resulting in death. His brief court appearance came about four hours after he was indicted by a federal grand jury in connection with the April 21 holdup of a Crocker National Bank branch in suburban Carmichael.

A customer, Myrna Opsahl, 42, was killed by a shotgun blast during the $15,247 robbery, which police say involved at least four persons

The indictment did not name Miss Hearst and others linked to the Symbionese Liberation Army, although the FBI has identified Miss Hearst as the woman who rented a garage used for the getaway car. But U.S. Atty. Dwayne Keyes

School bond issue vote is scheduled

SWEET SPRINGS - Voters in the R-7 school district here will be asked next Tuesday to approve a $38,000 bond issue to complete the district's recentlyconstructed mid-school, as well as to equip it.

The original cost estimate on the structure was $507,500. However, the lowest bid received, from Curtiss Manes Construction Co., was $709,277, or $201,777 over the estimate.

As a result, the board voted to negotiate with Curtiss Manes to reduce the cost, finally reaching a reduction figure of $176,945. This still left the board short by about $25,055, it was reported, but plans were made to go ahead with construction and a contract was entered Aug. 29,

In the meantime, it was explained, inflation and additions to the original contract caused increases in the original cost figure, raising the school district's estimated deficit to $38,000 - the amount sought in the bond issue.

The board emphasized that the $38,000 is the amount it can legally bond until after its initial principal payment is made in March, and that this did not mean another bond issue would be needed after that.

School officials are hoping to move the fourth through eighth grades to the new building in early 1976. The structure is a on a 26-acre site.

The classrooms vacated when the switch occurs will be utilized for special education, a primary library, speech correction and some high school

London restaurant scene of bombing

LONDON (AP) — London's fashionable West End was hit by its second bombing in a week with an explosion in the doorway of a Mayfair restaurant 200 yards from the U.S. Embassy which injured 18 persons, four of them Americans.

We are both fine, the Lord be thanked," said Edwin Daly, 42, of Bryn Mawr, Pa., as he and his 10-year-old daughter, Ruth, were released from a hospital early today.

The other two Americans were Alan Ward and his wife, Ruth, both 68, of Riverside, Conn. They were kept in the hospital, Ward with cuts about ,the head and neck and his wife with cuts on the face and knee.

All the injured suffered cuts, bruises or shock. Seven of them were kept in the hospital overnight.
The restaurant, the Trattoria

Fiori on South Audley street, was wrecked. The bomb exploded just before 9:30 p.m. Wednesday.

"As I rushed up to the restaurant, people were shouting and screaming," said photographer Maurice Marucci. "One man was staggering around shouting, "Bastards! Bastards!' Others were crying for help. Six or seven people collapsed on the sidewalk. There was blood all over them and all over the road."

"I heard an explosion and everything went dark," said Daly, who is in England on business."We were sitting right at the corner table by the door. Fortunately we were not badly

Enrico Sidoli, the restaurant's chef, said the mediumpriced eating spot was not very busy and only about 20 people were in it at the time.

"All the windows were smashed and a ceiling collapsed," he said.

Scotland Yard's bomb squad said the explosion was caused by "a small bomb - seven to 10 pounds of explosive." But bomb squad chief Ernest Bond told reporters the effect on the building was "devastating."

"The restaurant is shattered and there is damage to the pavement and the cellar underneath," he said. "Water and gas pipes in the restaurant were broken."

The Irish Republican Army is blamed for bombings in Britain that have killed more than 50 persons and injured 750 others since 1972. Five have been killed and 80 injured in 10 bombings since Aug. 27.

A bombing last Thursday morning occurred about 21/2 miles west of the restaurant blast, in the West Kensington district. A bomb exploded in a car in front of the home of a Conservative member of Parliament with whom the late President Kennedy's daughter, Caroline, is staying, and a leading cancer specialist who was walking his dog was killed.

Scotland Yard announced Wednesday that it was questioning four men and four women about recent bombings in

Thousands of Viet refugees fearful of entering society

By JOHN WHEELER Associated Press Writer

CAMP PENDLETON. Calif. (AP) — As the dusty refugee camps here fade into memory, many of the remaining "hard core" Vietnamese are fearful of entering American society and want to become wards of the government instead, some camp officials say.

The refugee camps here close Friday, and more than 3.000 Vietnamese will be transferred to the only remaining refugee camp, at Ft. Chaffee, Ark. For most it will be their third camp since fleeing their homeland six months ago.

Marine Capt. Lon Getlin, commander of Refugee Camp Four, said many of the Vietnamese still here are deeply worried about their ability to "make it" in the United States and cling almost desperately to the tent camps that for them have become "little Vietnams" on U.S. soil.

"Some of those who do have American sponsors do their best to get out of leav-ing," he said. "Many drift off into other camps when it is time to leave, hoping to escape notice. Some we almost have to carry through the processing lines.

"We are down to the hard core, the tough ones to sponsor. The doctors, lawyers, professors, senior civil servants and those with fluent English went out snap, snap, snap. Now we have uneducated farmers and fishermen with no English and eight to 13 members in their families. They are going to be tough."

There are signs the Vietnamese sense these problems and this contribute to the apprehension and the lingering depression they feel over abandoning their homeland. On a recent day, about the only activity seen was children at play. Adults seemed to stick to their tents. perched on the edge of canvas cots or sprawled in hammocks fashioned from sheets. There was little talk. More than a few lay immobile, staring upward even when visitors entered their tents.

Lilbet Kalehmet, education coordinator for the refugees, said:

"Morale is dropping, apathy is up. There is almost a contagious fear. The camp is home. It's not great, but they're scared to move."

But move they must. First to Ft. Chaffee and then into U.S. society when Ft. Chaffee, the last of the camps, is shut down at year's end.

Marine Maj. Sally Pritchett, spokeswoman for the joint U.S. interagency task force running the refugee program here, said:

"The reluctant refugees are being counseled by the task force. Yes, some have turned down sponsors, and some have returned to Pendleton after going out with sponsors. Some fear U.S. society. Obviously sponsors have broken down, and the word has come back that sponsors do not always work

Such failures during the transition phase has helped boost the number of Vietnamese in California drawing some sort of welfare to 25 per cent. Officials here and in Washington say in the majority of cases the sponsors, Americans who volunteer to take the responsibility for the refugees' transition from camp to work-a-day American life, have worked

Westmoreland's memoirs criticize 'policy makers'

By PETER ARNETT AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) - The U.S. general most identified with American failure in Vietnam has struck back at critics in his lengthy memoirs.

Gen. William C. Westmoreland blames the defeat of the South Vietnamese not on the U.S. military but "the politicians and policy makers" in Washington "who forced us to fight with one hand."

To Westmoreland, the Vietnam war "could have been brought to a favorable end" had his advice been heeded. But instead, President Lyndon B. Johnson "listened to too much faulty advice" and disregarded Westmoreland's plans to invade Cambodia and Laos and increase bombing pressure against North Vietnam.

The retired four-star general titled his memoirs "War in

Mayor Daley not forced to comply

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Justice Department declined to force Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley's powerful Cook County Democratic organization to comply with federal campaign finance reporting laws last year, according to informed government sources.

The Democratic Party of Cook County, whose finances have long been kept secret from all but Daley and a few top aides, was cited early last year by Senate officials for failing to file required reports in 1972, a number of sources said. The failure to file appears to

Dismissal in APB trial

By JOHN M. WILLIS Associated Press Writer

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)-As the courtroom cleared, American Beef Packers Vice President Robert E. Lee simply said "Thanks" to his attorney Wednesday after fraud and conspiracy charges were dismissed against him.

Attorney David Lathrop said Lee was "very happy" at the decision of Federal District Court Judge Robert V. Denney. Denney ruled at the close of the government's case that Lee had not been sufficiently linked in a 105-count indictment returned last August.

Lee and American Beef President Frank R. West were indicted on charges that they conspired in an elaborate scheme to defraud Midwest livestock producers, stockholders and the company's major creditor of more than $20

Judge Denney also said he is "very concerned" that the government may not have established "specific criminal intent" against West, the corporation, and Beefland International, Inc., of Council Bluffs. Iowa, a wholly-owned subsidiary.

But Denney, hearing the case without a jury. reserved judgment in the cases of the other three defendants. The defense was scheduled to present its case Thursday

The conspiracy, according to the government allegations, culminated last Jan. 7 when American Beef and Beefland International filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy.

Attorneys for the four defendants made a two-pronged effort to get the charges dropped. They tried to quash the indictment and that was overruled by Denney after a closeddoor hearing Wednesday.

Then they argued the government had not proved its case sufficiently.

Lyle Strom, representing the two firms, said, "The case of a business failure is not a fraud...and they (business failures) happen every day.

Lathrop said the "government attorneys have completely failed" as far as Mr. Lee is concerned.

And West's attorney, Arthur O'Leary, said "Where is there any evidence that Frank West tried to defraud anyone?" He said there was none.

Government attorneys, in their rebuttal, said the defendants diverted funds from their largest creditor. General Electric Credit Corp. of Stamford, Conn., and then tried to blackmail that company into lending American Beef more money by threatening bankruptcy.

They (the defendants) figured they could get into General Electric Credit for more cash anytime they wanted to." said Asst. U. S. Atty. Thomas Thalken. "What it was, was economic blackmail.

Prior to defense motions for dismissal of all counts, Asst. U. S. Atty. Michael Schleich, the government's chief prosecutor in the case, asked Denney to dismiss a total of 12 counts filed against all four defend-

He said he did not feel the government had enough evidence to convict on 10 mail fraud charges. He also asked dismissal of two counts of interstate transportation of stolen

How it will look

This is an artist's conception of the proposed Golden Rule Nursing Home. Voters in the nursing home district will go to the polls Nov. 18 to decide whether the proposed $795,000 in general obligation bonds will be issued to build the facility.

Nursing home vote scheduled

LaMONTE - A special election on the issuance of up to $795,000 in general obligation bonds to construct a nursing home in western Pettis County will be held on Nov. 18 in the Golden Rule Nursing Home District.

Proceeds from the bond issue, which needs a two-thirds majority for passage, will be used to build a 60-bed facility for citizens of the district who require such care whether due to age, disability, short or longterm rehabilitation, or similar circumstances.

The six nursing home district board of directors, elected in November, 1974, and the township areas they represent are: Raymond Wasson, chairman, LaMonte; Pauline Jones, Hughesville and Dresden; Margaret Arnett, Prairie and parts of Washington and Flat Creek; Harold Hurd, Blackwater and Houstonia: Benny Clevenger, Elk Fork and part of Green Ridge; and Walter Kraft, Longwood and Cedar. The nursing home district was created through the efforts of a steering committee formed in April, 1974. The committee, under the direction of Mrs. Pauline Jones, chairman, circulated a petition and obtained 933 signatures, far above the 337 needed, and presented it to the County Court on May 20, 1974.

Plans to form the district were approved by voters in the district on Aug. 6 that year and the district was divided into six sub-districts and board members were elected in the November general election.

Selection of a site for the proposed nursing home was made easier with the donation of three acres of land adjacent to the Christian Church in the southwest portion of LaMonte by Mr. and Mrs. James P.

Although several sites were considered, the donation of the land played an important part in the site selection, as well as the availability of water and sewers, electricity, an uninterruptible supply of gas, access to Highway 50 and its central location in the district. The proposed nursing home will employ approximately 30 persons, including an administrator, bookkeeper, housekeeper, licensed nurses, nurses' aides, cooks. laundry and maintenance personnel. The anticipated annual payroll for these persons is estimated at $125,000.

The proposed facility is of contemporary design, with a brick exterior, would be fire resistant and constructed with all the latest safety features for the protection of the occupants, according to Wasson. The proposed structure and site has been approved by state officials, he said.

The nursing home will be a one-story structure with a partial basement and will be designed with a central nursing station for efficiency of operation and convenience of the residents.

Planned as a Y-shaped structure, an additional wing could be added at a later date, doubling its capacity to 120 patients if the need and finances warrant, Wasson said.

Porter-Brierly Associates, Columbia, was the architect for the proposed nursing home.

The present estimated population of the district is slightly over 6,000 persons, with many of them receiving nursing care in homes outside the district of in homes of relatives, awaiting admittance nursing home.

Pettis County Clerk Mary locations have been set by the nally of Troy, N.Y.

Jane Wilson is presently preparing tax statements for county residents, including the 65-cent levy for the operation of the district until issuance of the obligation bonds for the home is approved.

Only residents in the district will pay the additional tax. If approved, the bond issue will increase taxes for the district's residents by about 27 cents per $100 assessed valuation, based on the $26 million assessment of the district in 1974.

If the bonds are paid off faster than the 20 years anticipated to do so at the 27 cent levy. Wasson said the levy would be dropped accordingly. However, even a decreased levy would be in effect for 20 years due to the terms of the proposed bond issue.

If the issue fails next month, it will be put before the voters again before June 1, 1976, when the land donation option ends. If the nursing home is not approved by then, the land reverts back to the owners. Wasson said.

The 15-cent levy being placed on this year's tax statements will generate roughly $37,000, which will be used to defray the cost of the election, architect's expenses, and expenses of the board, Wasson said. He noted that the directors have operated Ridge. "out of their own pockets" so

ST. LOUIS (AP) - Union Electric Co. was to be free of a strike today for the first time in 16 weeks after electrical union workers approved a twoyear contract calling for total wage increases of 15 per cent.

Who's on first for nutrition?

Dear Dr. Lamb - I am interested in getting enough fiber in my diet, but I am most confused. I find it difficult to reconcile calories to nutrition to fats to proteins to carbohydrates to amino acids to enzymes, etc. In other words, who's on first? It was complicated enough before, now along comes this nutrition thing, and I don't know how to relate it to all the other stuff.

I understand that candy, sweets, alcohol are "empty" calories that provide no Must one be sure he eats nutritious calories?

Dear Reader - It is confusing. There has been a lot of loose application of the word nutrition. Nutrition means simply the entire process of taking in and utilizing food, to "nourish" yourself. Calories are part of nutrition and there is no such thing as a non-nutritious refined flour provides calories calorie. That is like having non-

Try to think of nutrition not as who is on first but what you need for the whole process. Your body is like an engine, and the combustion stage requires both gas in the engine and spark plugs. So you need calories, the fuel or energy, and the means to process it, the vitamins.

First, you need enough calories but not too many, for growth, proper body weight and daily energy.

Second, you need all the right vitamins and minerals to process the food to release the calories and to provide parts for the body such as calcium for bones and iron for blood.

Third, you need protein, because it contains amino acids that are used to build body structures, such as muscles, and even to build enzymes, hormones and other vital body substances. What protein you don't use for building or replacement building can be used as fuel or calories to provide energy or store energy as fat. It can also be used to form carbohydrate fuel for the

Mafia connection in porno business

One aspect of the burgeoning pornography business that is beginning to get increasing attention is the Mafia connection.

National headquarters of the porno industry is Los Angeles. The Los Angeles police report that organized crime now controls at least 80 per cent of the porno movie business and 70 per cent of the hardcore magazine and book trade.

"These aren't guesses; we've got records to back the figures." said the chief of the L. A. department's administrative vice division in a story by the Los Angeles Times News Service. He said the situation was about the same in New York, the other smut capital of the U.S.

Two of the most lucrative porno movies in recent years, "Deep Throat" and "The Devil in Miss Jones," were distributed largely through exclusive Mafia channels, according to law enforcement officials. The latter film was briefly shown in Sedalia last year.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Paul on the whole area of control of scourge.

pornography and obscenity, said he also believes organized crime is tied into the production, distribution and sale of pornographic films and other materials. He said there was no evidence, however, that the Mafia was directly involved in any Sedalia episodes. One of these led to the local confiscation of a film, and the agreement by its distributor, in lieu of prosecution, to stay out of this part of Missouri.

Mafia incursions into the pornography businesses have been characterized by the usual sidelines. Killings, beatings, extortions and various other Mob specialties have been commonplace in the course of its takeover of this multi-milliondollar racket.

Regardless of one's personal opinion on the need for controlling smut, the fact that the porno pipeline is now largely operated for the sole purpose of putting more money into Mafia pockets should Anthony White, who was in town be reason enough for seeing that Tuesday and addressed a civic club Sedalia remains free of this

Liberals 'shocked' at intelligence work

By CROSBY S. NOYES

WASHINGTON — These are hard times for the intelligence community. To judge from the expressions of horror and shock from our liberal legislators, we are back in the era of intelligence-gathering which held that "gentlemen don't read other people's

Of course, it's perfectly O.K. for private citizens to steal secret government documents and deliver them by the crateful to sympathetic newspapers. But let the government be accused of reading the mail or listening to the phone calls of a few people suspected of being security risks or involved in the international drug traffic, and the foundations of our fundamental civil liberties are held to be in deadly peril.

It is very fashionable these days to be against any intelligence-gathering activity. It is even fashionable to be against national security. Everything of this sort is automatically related to the excesses of the Nixon administration in the Watergate affair. We are well on the way to a kind of reverse McCarthyism in which the most elementary activities of the various security agencies are denounced as deepdyed plots against individual freedom.

In this I suspect there is a large element of hypocrisy and political miscalculation. Americans may deplore the need for government snooping on the activities of their fellow-citizens. But most would also recognize the legitimacy of mail interception and phone taps in cases involving national security, kidnapping or organized crime.

It is hard to contend — as some liberals do - that security of communications is a constitutional right guaranteed to all

From its inception, the telephone has been the most insecure means of private communication. Almost everyone over the age of 30 has lived in a community of party lines where every conversation was assumed to be monitored and in which the telephone operator was always the bestinformed gal in town. In every foreign country, the tapping of resident foreigners is automatically expected.

A few years ago, I remember calling Lyndon Johnson's presidential assistant McGeorge Bundy at the White House with an indiscreet question. "Surely," said Bundy, "You can't expect an answer to that — especially over the telephone."

Much the same goes for the sanctity of the mails as an inviolable constitutional right of every American citizen. Many of those now leading the protest against the intelligence services spent plenty of disagreeable hours, as officers in the American Army in World War II, reading the letters of their own enlisted men - a duty made the more distasteful by the presumption that officers' mail was uncensored.

True, we are not in a state of war today. But the principle that the privacy of communication is subordinate to the requirements of national security - and presumably also the war against organized crime in this country - would not be seriously disputed by a great majority of American citizens.

The conflict between the rights of the individual and the rights of society. represented by a democratically elected government, is not exactly new. What is essential today is that these differing and not always easily compatible - rights be redefined in a way which will protect honest citizens (by legal rather than political definition) without compromising the right of the state to defend itself. It is one of the more urgent tasks of the post-Watergate period.

The Mason-Dixon Line. probably the most widely known boundary line in the United States, was named after two famous mathematicians, Charles Mason and Jeremiah Dixon. The two were called in from England in 1763 to help resolve a long dispute over the measurements of boundary lines separating Pennsylvania, Delaware and Maryland. The World Almanac notes that resurveys made 200 years later proved that Mason and Dixon had determined alignments with an amazing degree of accuracy using available 18th cen-

Passport to New York City

WASHINGTON - I decided to go to New York City the other day. After what President Ford and Secretary of the Treasury William Simon and Chairman of the Federal Reserve Board Arthur Burns have been saying about the city I first checked with the State Department to make sure that I wouldn't be jeopardizing my citizenship.

I was put in touch with someone from the passport division.

"I'd like to go to New York City," I told him, "and I was wondering if there were any restrictions on my passport for making the I know we're not allowed to go to Albania, North Korea, Cuba and Uganda, but I'm not clear on what the United States policy is on New York." 'What is the purpose of your trip?'' the State Department official asked me.

"Tourism," I replied. "I thought I'd catch a few shows, go to dinner at a good restaurant and maybe do a little shopping."

"At the moment the United States has no official restriction concerning an American citizen visiting New York City, but I am obligated to warn you that you'll be doing it at your own risk.'

"Why is that?" I asked.

"If anything happens and the city goes down the drain we won't be able to protect you. As you know, the President has broken off all diplomatic ties with Mayor Beame and the situation is very tense. Why can't you go to China or the Soviet Union where we have good relations?"

"I'd just like to see New York," I said. "You never know when the curtain will go down on that part of the world, and if I don't do it now I may never get another

"I can appreciate your feelings on that," the State Department official said, "but I must tell you that you couldn't have picked a worse time. By visiting New York you will only be contributing to its economy and encouraging Abe Beame to stay in power. The President and the secretary of the treasury believe New York City must be taught a lesson if it ever hopes to become a part of the Free World again."

"I know what you're saying," I told the man. "But I still think a visit there won't hurt American foreign policy. I'll appreciate the United States more than ever when I get back."

"If you insist I can't stop you," the official said angrily. "But we will have to make a routine check with the FBI to make sure you have no relatives there.'

But I do have relatives there. I have three sisters and an aunt."

"That puts a different light on things. How do we know you won't be blackmailed by the secret police?' "I thought they didn't have secret police in New York any more," I said. "I heard Beame had to cut them out of his budget." "I forgot that," the State Department official said. "By the way, you're not going with Jane Fonda are you? "I'd like to. I didn't know she was

"We have information she and Dr. Spock are planning to attend a Jets game at Shea Stadium. They expect to meet with Joe "That's terrible," I said. "But I assure you my visit isn't political. I just want to see the Statue of Liberty and the Metropolitan Museum of Art." "All right, bring your passport in and we'll certify it for ONE trip. But, remember, you're going to be in enemy territory and anything you say or do will reflect on the United States of America. When you come back the White House would like to debrief you.' "That's all right with me," I said. "I'll keep my eyes and ears open. If there's anything I can do to bring New York to its knees tell the President he can count on

Head of the LEAA a nut for fitness

By JACK ANDERSON with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON - Outwardly, Richard W. Velde might appear to be a mildmannered, middle-aged bureaucrat. But behind his dark-rimmed spectacles, buttondown collar and conservative-cut clothes, he has confided to associates, he possesses "the body of a 25-year-old."

He is quick to produce his medical charts, moreoever, to prove it.

Velde is boss of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, which is supposed to assist local policemen. He wants to assist them, most of all, to be youthfully strong like he is. For the 43-yearold administrator with the 25-year-old anatomy is a physical fitness freak.

He has spent huge sums of the taxpayers' money on exercise equipment and fitness programs to improve the muscle tone of the constabulary. One $541,623 grant has been set aside specifically "to promote physical fitness in police officers." An estimated $200,000 of this will be invested in exercise and medical paraphernalia.

Velde also hoped to develop, as we previously related, a Dick Tracy wristwatch, which would provide the cop on the move with a digital readout of his blood pressure, pulse rate and body temperature - in case he should wish to check on the state of his health as well as the time of day.

This $300,000 project was abruptly dropped, much to Velde's disappointment, after our story appeared. "The watch is a dead issue," an LEAA spokesman told us

Velde has also spent small sums of the taxpayers' money on his physical fitness interests. Among his body-building exercises, for instance, he has become an inveterate jogger. On the day of the Boston marathon, he arranged an official trip to

A spokesman insisted that Velde did not participate in the event but merely watched the race out of a window.

He is not so addicted to jogging, however, that he is willing to give up his limousine privileges - as Congress has called upon such government gadabouts to do. His predecessors managed to get along with whatever conveyances might be seized in drug raids. One drove a contraband Buick, another a confiscated Audi.

But Velde rides in a more stylish, black Mercury Marquis, with a telephone suitable for a busy executive. He has used his government limousine, his chauffeur has confessed to the inspector general, to haul his wife and children around

Paradoxically, Velde claims at least one flaw in his fine physique. He insists that a tailbone ailment makes it necessary for him to fly first-class. His 43-year-old tailbone, he attests, requires the larger, luxurious seats in the first-class section.

The cause of the pain in Velde's tailbone, a spokesman explained solemnly, was too much sitting in airplanes. During the first year as LEAA's administrator, Velde spent $14,069.31 for air fare and another $2,668.47 for miscellaneous travel expenses. His trips took him from Atlanta to Alaska, New Orleans to Las Vegas, New York to Hawaii.

The soft-spoken Velde, whose lanky frame and receding hairline give him the appearance of everybody's next-door neighbor, is a protege of Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb., the Senate's selfproclaimed champion of mediocrity.

Ex-President Nixon resisted Hruska's entreaties to elevate Velde to the top of the LEAA totem pole for five years. But in he closing hours of his presidency, Nixon needed Hruska's support for an anticipated impeachment battle in the Senate.

Nixon relented at the last minute and nominated Velde to head the LEAA. It was one of Nixon's last nominations. The buffeted LEAA is still stuck with it.

Footnote: Velde is also an amateur shutterbug. Our sources say he has helped himself to LEAA's photographic equipment. This is denied by a spokesman who swore: "Velde has never had film processed for his own personal benefit. He does not have the camera at home."

But our associate, Bob Owens, checked with LEAA's audio visual department, which acknowledged that Velde checks out a Nikon camera "for a couple of weeks at a time." He also picks up film, usually about five rolls at a time. He submits the film for processing, which is done at government expense. But the audio visual people send him the developed pictures unopened.

WASHINGTON WHIRL: Sen. Paul Fannin, R-Ariz., recently pushed a bill through Congress to construct an aquaduct in arid Arizona. The project, which will be completed around 1985, will improve property values and benefit real estate brokers, including the senator's son, Tom Fannin, who runs a real estate office in Phoenix. A spokesman for the senator said he started pushing the aquaduct long before his son opened a real estate office.

Rookie dumps Kings at :02

KANSAS CITY (AP) - Bruce Seals, a 6-foot-8 rookie from Xavier of New Orleans, scored a layup with two seconds left to give the Seattle Supersonics a 92-91 triumph over Kansas City in National Basketball Association play Wednesday night.

Seals, who took a pass from Slick Watts to score the winning basket, was instrumental in a third quarter surge that saw the Sonics lead by as many as 12 points after the Kings had held an 18-point bulge at one point in the second period. The 18-point margin "was almost a false lead," said Kings Coach Phil Johnson. "They just weren't shooting well."

Jimmy Walker of the Kings. who scored 11 of his 18 points in the final period, described the game this way:

"In the first half it seemed like we were doing everything bad and I look up and we're up by 18 points. Then all of a sudden nothing would go in for us and everything did for them."

Kansas City, 0-2, took an 89-88 lead with 2:23 left on Larry McNeill's short jump shot. Nate Archibald, who topped the Kings with 25 points, then hit two free throws to widen Kansas City's lead to three points.

Watts, also a product of Xavier, then hit with 1:09 left and set the stage for Seals' heroics.

Seals had 25 points, Fred Brown 17 and Watts 12 for Seattle, 3-1.

2 counties report 16 archery kills

By JACK SCHICHT and ED VAUGHAN Democrat-Capital Staff Writers

The archery deer season is a month old and bow hunters statewide are doing fairly well.

The Missouri Department of Conservation last week reported 552 kills by archers. Locally one deer has been checked in at the Pettis County sheriff's office and 15 at the Benton County check station at the jail in Warsaw.

Benton County Sheriff Robert Breshears reported seven bucks and eight does were checked in at Warsaw. Of these, 11 were killed in Benton County, two in Camden County and one each in Hickory and Henry Counties. The one doe checked in at the Pettis County jail was shot in Morgan County.

Chester Vermaas, area supervisor for the Department of Conservation, says the total deer harvest this year should be about the same as last year's harvest of about 1,000 deer in Benton County and 80 to 90 in Pettis County.

"I don't foresee any big increase," Vermaas said. He added that the deer population in the two-county area is about the

Although there has been a gradual increase in the number of hunters in recent years, weather will be a main factor in determining the extent of this year's kill, he said.

"The weather will be an influence," Vermaas said. "A lot of guys like to stay near their cars in bad weather."

Last year hunters killed 33,000 deer. This year the harvest is expected to near 50,000, mainly because deer of either sex may be taken on Nov. 15 and 16 (the two opening days of the firearms season) in five of the state's 12 districts, including Zone 5, or the area bordered by Highway 70 on the north, 63 on the east, 66 on the south and 13 on the west. This includes Pettis, Morgan and Benton Counties.

Archery season ends Nov. 14, but resumes again from Nov. 24 through Dec. 31. Firearms season runs from Nov. 15 through

One of the first deer hunters to register a kill was Hugh E. Wilson, Route 1, Lincoln, who took what he described as a "small doe" at 5 p.m. on opening day (Oct. 1) on property he owns near Edmonson, northeast of Warsaw in Benton County.

This is the third year in a row that Wilson, a building trades teacher at Lincoln High School, has bagged a deer with a bow and arrow. Wilson, who said he's been bow hunting "too many years to count," was hunting on the ground at about 5 p.m. when he saw two or three in a bunch, slowly grazing. One shot did the trick. "That isn't always the case," Wilson admitted. "I've had a lot more misses than hits." "To get a deer on the first day," he added, "is more luck than

Wilson said that from the deer he has observed while driving a school bus this fall, prospects this year appear good.

* * * Three of the 22 turkeys reported shot in Missouri as of last week were taken in Benton County. Vermaas said most of the birds bagged in the new fall archery season, which ends Friday, were "younger, less wary birds." Pettis County was excluded from this season's hunt, but Benton, Saline, Cooper, Morgan and Camden Counties were included.

time ago when the turning leaves were ringing in the opening of the 1975 high school football season.

Although there has been little indication weather-wise that the fall season is here, for the Smith-Cotton Tigers, the season ends Friday in Columbia.

Smith-Cotton, a 1-8-1 team a year ago, has a chance to finish above .500 with a victory over the Hickman Kewpies in Friday's season finale.

There is more riding on the game than a better-than-ever record, however. A Smith-Cotton victory would send the Central Missouri Conference into a three-way tie for the championship.

Jefferson City, a 26-6 loser earlier in the season to for 660 yards in the first eight Hickman, stands at 2-1 with its games. CMC slate completed.

Smith-Cotton, after losing to the Jays by two touchdowns, rebounded for a two-point victory over Hannibal. Hickman is 1-0 in league play with wins over Jefferson City and Hannibal. A win would give the Kewpies a clean sweep of the three conference foes, and another conference championship. But a loss will give Smith-Cotton, Jefferson City and Hickman all a share of the league's crown.

It seemed like such a short Missouri Conference football race wound up in a tie was in 1957, when S-C, Hickman and the Jays all earned a share of the crown with 5-1 league

> The last time the Tigers pulled off a victory over the Kewpies was in 1958, 19-7.

> Smith-Cotton has had trouble rushing the ball all season, and the Kewpies' big defensive front won't be any easier task for first-year coach Bob Fletcher's charges.

If S-C can't move the ball on the ground, they obviously will have to go to the air, where senior quarterback Bill Raybourn has been successful

This will be Rabourn's final prep appearance. Other seniors making their last appearances will be Bryan Kelchner, Rodney Cline, Bob Trautman, Mike Mack, Max Bronson, Brad Calder, John Williams, Jim Barnes, Bob Paul, Randy Klein and Mark Vinson.

Kickoff at Hickman's stadium is set for 8 p.m.

Minnesota ends skid at five

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) - Veteran Bill Goldsworthy took care of the offense, goalie Pete LoPresti the defense and the rest of the Minnesota North Stars killed penalties with unusual precision

The result: The end of a fivegame losing streak Wednesday night with a 2-0 victory over the Kansas City Scouts.

"They (Kansas City) didn't get any shots from the slot." said the 21-year-old LoPresti, who turned in his second career NHL shutout Wednesday night. "From where they had to shoot, a goalie should stop LoPresti turned back 24 shots by the Scouts and survived a span of 85 seconds in the second period when Minnesota skated with a two-man deficit.

"After that, we just couldn't get anything going," said Simon Nolet, captain of the K.C. club, which is now 3-4-1. "If we had scored on our power plays then it would have been a different game.'

Goldsworthy slammed in his fourth goal of the season late in the first period to give Minnesota a 1-0 advantage and he assisted on Ernie Hicke's goal in the final minute of play on a two-on-one break for the North

"I thought we carried the play for most of the game," said North Stars Coach Ted Harris. "We're still capable of playing better hockey, but they're starting to jell now.'

The Scouts managed only 13 shots in the first two periods, but blasted off 11 in the final period.

Graduation riddles last season's roster

Green Ridge looks to new faces this year

Staff Sports Writer

GREEN RIDGE - The Green Ridge Tigers have begun a rebuilding program this year since last spring's graduation took their top six scorers. This year, the varsity team will consist of last year's junior varsity starters.

The Tigers are seeded sixth in the Kaysinger Conference Tournament this year. Coach Larry Barb expected to be seeded this low because of the loss of last year's starting five and this year's lack of experience.

Because of inexperience at the varsity level, Barb expects his young team to make mistakes at the start of the season; however, he does expect improvement from his players as the season progresses. Also, the Tiger coach doesn't see his team scoring as much this year because there is not as much speed and shooting ability as last year.

Asked about losing his top six scorers of last year, Coach Barb quickly answered, "It's gonna hurt." Those graduated include four players who averaged in double figures in 1974-75. Gone are Robert Risner (15.0), Joe Purchase (13.5, Kelly Harding (12.5) and Dean Rupe (10.9). Also gone are Larry Crumpley and Danny Cook.

The Tigers do, however, have three players who did see some action in the varsity last year. They are - Rusty Ray, the only senior on the team, Joe Mattingly, and Randy Scotten.

Those people expected to see the most action this year for Barb's Tigers are - Joe Mattingly, a 6-4 center; Joe Dove, a 6-1 forward; Randy Scotten, 6-1 forward; Rusty Ray, 6-1 forward; Jim Binder, 5-8 guard; and Gary Snyder, a 5-8 guard.

The Tigers could get some additional help from some other players up off the junior varsity team of a year ago. The B-team Tigers finished second in the 1974-75 Kaysinger Conference Junior Varsity Tournament.

Green Ridge, which opens the '75 varsity season Tuesday night in Leeton, will be hard-pressed to duplicate last season's 7-1 Kaysinger Conference record and overall mark of 15-10.

Beats out Carter

Montefusco '75 rookie

NEW YORK (AP) - John "The Count" Montefusco, who not only talked but also played a good game of baseball this year with the San Francisco Giants, was named the National League's Rookie of the Year to-

Because the cocky hurler put his money arm where his mouth was, the Baseball Writers Association of America accorded him top rookie honors ahead of Montreal's brilliant young outfielder-catcher, Gary Carter.

"I really think this is great," said the swaggering. 25-yearold pitcher after learning that he had outscored Carter 12-9 in the voting. "It's the biggest thing that's happened to me in my whole life. I've been shootfor it all year.

"I want to be the best pitcher in the majors and this is the start of it. This caps off the whole year beautifully

Three other players received one vote each from the 24-man BBWAA board, two from each of the National League cities. They were Montreal third baseman Larry Parrish, second baseman Manny Trillo of the Chicago Cubs and pitcher Rawly Eastwick of the Cincinnati Reds.

As a high school shortstop, Montefusco was ignored in the free agent draft by all 24 major league teams. But he was signed by Giant scout Buddy Kerr following the draft in 1973 and went on to post a 9-2 record at Decatur after Kerr converted him into a pitcher.

After winning 15 games in the minors in 1974, Montefusco joined the Giants late in the season and won three games for them. The hard-throwing right-hander established himself as a strikeout artist in spring training this year and went on to become San Francisco's bread-and-butter pitcher with a 15-9 record and 215 strikeouts.

His victories were the most ever by a Giant rookie and his strikeout total narrowly missed tying the first-year record for pitchers established by Grover Cleveland Alexander, who had 227 in 1911.

Montefusco, a New Jersey native transplanted to Belmont. was known for bragga docio throughout his freshman year. His own cheerleader. Montefusco became a quick favorite with Giant fans not only for his baseball talents but also for his colorful, boastful behav-

Among Montefusco's most euphorious moments was a strikeout of Johnny Bench, Cincinnati's All-Star catcher.

"That was my 200th strikeout," Montefusco said at the time and made sure to remember it by sending the momentous baseball back home to his mother

Montefusco had four shutouts. pitched 244 innings and wound up with a 2.88 earned run average, seventh best in the league

Low-grade beef imports nearing restraint levels

By DON KENDALL AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Imports of low-grade beef are climbing rapidly toward "voluntary restraint" levels set in 1974 by the Ford administration for foreign suppliers to prevent import rates from triggering mandatory quotas.

Through September, according to Agriculture Department figures, 1975 imports totaled more than 933.4 million pounds. only about 247 million pounds short of a lid announced for the whole year

During the last three months of 1974, about 270 million pounds of quota type meat mainly beef but also including fresh, frozen and chilled veal, mutton and goat meat — entered the U.S. market. Arrivals during the final quarter 1975 would therefore have to be only a little short of the year-ago imports to exceed the maximum.

The department announced on Oct. 1 that it still expected meat imports to be no more than 1.18 billion pounds this year, just short of a "trigger" level set by a formula in law and adjusted annually to reflect U.S. beef output. Once reached, trigger levels force mandatory quotas on foreign beef.

The state Air Pollution Control Division concluded in a recent study based on 1974 data that "this small amount of information indicated that in downtown Denver the air pollution problem was of a magnitude greater than or equal to that in much larger metropolitan areas.'

One state pollution expert said the continued expansion of suburbs around Denver "seems to indicate that the problem is going to get worse.'

One federal study examined blood samples taken from nonsmokers in 18 cities. Denver blood donors were found to have higher levels of carboxyhemoglobin, produced by carbon monoxide, than perhaps in any other ci-

The levels for Denver residents were more than 10 per cent higher than those found in blood samples of persons living in Los Angeles.

State and federal officials say the high pollution levels result from a combination of -Denver's mile-high altitude provides a high penetration of ultra-violet sunshine, necessary to produce ozone from automobile exhaust.

-The city's climate produces long-lasting air inversions, particularly in winter, preventing the escape of carbon monoxide poured out of motor vehicle exhaust pipes into the surrounding

-Denver residents' love for the automobile rivals that found anywhere in the country. A state official estimates there are 800,000 motor

Debt ceiling rebuttal won't result in crisis

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House defeat of legislation to raise the national debt ceiling will not, by any reasonable estimate, bring about a crisis next month with the government unable to pay its bills.

Instead, the defeat could give ammunition to President Ford and others for their wants spending reductions.

The House voted Wednesthird book, says he approaches day, 217 to 178, against a his pictures from a historical measure that would have perspective, believing that the hiked the debt limit by $30 billion, to $597 billion enough, it was estimated, to take care of U.S. treasury needs through March 31.

Without legislation, the limit will drop Nov. 15 to $400 billion, far below the actual debt. In such a case, the treasury, forced to keep borrowing while the government continues to run in the red, would soon be unable to meet its obligations.

But Congress never has allowed this to happen and there was no perceptible chance that it will do so now.

'Before the crunch comes, we'll be back with another bill," said Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., chairman of the Ways and Means Committee which produced the ill-fated

2— Cards of Thanks

WE - GEORGE AND GRACE PUTNAM wish to know something to say far more great-er than "Thank you," therefore I am compelled to say, "May God bless you everyone with the best; never forget to call on the best friend we all have — Jesus Christ — in time of need. This night may close the door for you or I, and the morning find our empty house with us away. I speak for Grace as well as for myself. Many, many thanks to all who helped to make the load a little lighter. Again thanks, and may your Savior and mine bless you all — is my prayer. Grace passed away Oct. 23rd, 1975 - 8:15 evening."

Sheriff Emmett Fairfax and Dr. James herdsman for the farm, and had last R. Waddell, 2416 South Quincy, who covers this district for the state veterinarian's office, disagree in their opinions about one of three cases of reported cattle mutilation in the past few days.

Waddell said Wednesday he thinks the cattle involved in all three alleged mutilation cases were attacked by predatory animals following deaths by natural causes.

However, Fairfax said Thursday morning he still believes some person was involved in one of the cases before the carcass was disturbed by predators.

Doctor believes animals are causing problems

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Officials looking into the recent rash of cattle mutilations in Missouri say they believe four-legged animals, not devil cultists, are responsible for the acts.

Following news media accounts of mutilations in several western states, local law enforcement agencies in all parts of Missouri say they began receiving almost daily reports of similar gory goings-on in their areas.

In almost all cases, the dead cattle were missing an eye, an ear and their tongue, and sometimes the rectum and sex organs, indicating to persons with fertile imaginations that members of some weird cult were at work with ritualistic knives.

But officials say there's little evidence to support that theory

'We have investigated 15 of these incidents," said Dr. Taylor Woods, state veterinarian with the Department of Agriculture, "and in all but one case the deaths and mutilations appear to be natural. The cattle involved proved to have died of common diseases and the missing parts of the bodies were removed by predators.'

Dr. Richard Coles, director of Washington University's Tyson Valley Research Center just west of St. Louis, said in his experience the evidence tends to support the theory that predators are responsible for the mutilations.

"Once in a while one of the deer dies in our preserve and we have an opportunity to observe the predators in action," Dr. Coles said. "Covotes generally start at the rectum and eat their way forward, taking the genitals and other organs incidentally as they go."

The tongue? A delicacy for predators,

The eye? "When an animal dies it generally lays on its side," the veterinarian said, "exposing one eye to crows and buzzards."

The fact that there is little or no blood splattered about is explained by the fact that the animals' blood has coagulated by the time the predators go to work.

Prince is given power in Spain

MADRID, Spain (AP) — The Spanish government on Thursday night transferred power temporarily from stricken Gen. Francisco Franco, 82, to his 37-year-old heir. Prince Juan Carlos de Borbon.

The transfer was made in an official notice, required by law, sent to parliament by Premier Carlos Arias Navarro.

Although the transfer legally was temporary, it was generally expected to become permaent with Franco's death.

The announcement of the transfer of power, under Article 11 of the Spanish constitution, was made over government radio and television and the semiofficial news agency Cifra.

It came moments after doctors treating Franco said his stomach had been punctured to relieve a buildup of fluid in the abdominal cavity.

Legally, Arias' letter named the prince new head of state "in functions," the same status he had 15 months ago when Franco suffered a near fatal blood clot in his right leg. On that occasion, Franco himself suggested the handover. Legally, however, his consent is not required.

The prince, rejected in advance by Spain's long silent political opposition, is scheduled to preside at a cabinet meet-

Franco named the prince six years ago to succeed on event of his death, retirement or incapacity to rule.

Besides being head of state, the prince will become Spain's first king since his grandfather, Alfonso XIII, abdicated in The temporary transfer of power, however, does not include installation of the prince on the throne. That comes only with Franco's death.

Doctors said they noted "no ostensible modifications" in Franco's condition Thursday but for the first time in several days they did not report whether the general was conscious.

N.Y. aid approved; veto still looming

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Banking Committee approved on Thursday a $4 billion loan guarantee bill for New York City, but the Ford administration reaffirmed its opposition to providing federal aid for the financially stricken city.

The bill faces a threatened filibuster on the Senate floor and a probable presidential veto if it survives House and Senate opposition.

Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, appearing before a House economic stabilization subcommittee, said New York City had not exhausted all possible sources of cash to stave off bankruptcy.

Simon suggested emergency funds could be obtained by raising the state sales tax from 8 to 11 per cent or borrowing money against municipal pension funds, proposals under consideration by Albany leaders.

In Los Angeles, Ford told reporters that the New York crisis should be a warning to all municipalities to manage their affairs properly.

The loan guarantee was approved in the Senate committee by an 8 to 5 to vote.

Sen. Robert Morgan, D-N.C., was the lone Democrat to vote against it and Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., the only Republican to vote for it

Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., reminded the committee of Ford's statement Wednesday that he would veto any "bailout" or loan guarantee to prevent New York City from defaulting on its obligations.

"The fact is," Tower said, "there ain't gonna be no loan guarantee legislation. You can talk about the horrors and gloom of default all day but the fact is the city's going to default.

Tower said the committee should be doing something to help New York instead of considering the measure by Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill.

"If we pass out the Stevenson bill, what we're doing is reporting out something that will never, never become law," Tower said.

Chairman William Proxmire, D-Wis., told Tower that it has "been no secret that the President would veto this legislation ...

It's not the threat of a veto, Tower said, "it's what you can get through the

"There's bipartisan opposition."

Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., said "there is absolutely no possibility of overriding a presidential veto."

Brooke asked the committee to consider a substitute which would eliminate loan guarantees and provide instead a direct $3 billion loan to the city to maintain essential services and issue federally guaranteed debt certificates in the event the city defaults.

Brooke's motion was defeated 7 to 6. Brooke also lost on an attempt to strike the loan guarantees from the Stevenson measure 9 to 4, with Packwood voting with the Democrats.

Stevenson called President Ford's suggestions on Wednesday "the largest bailout of all.

"To veto this proposal, the President would have to veto his own proposal," Stevenson said.

Commenting on the likelihood of a veto, Proxmire said that "I've seen presidents turn around before. Nixon turned around on a dime on the subject of price

Man carrying toy gun arrested near Ford

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - A man carrying a toy gun who claimed he was trying to protect President Ford was taken into custody Thursday at a parking garage near the downtown hotel where Ford spoke to a political luncheon.

The man, he said his name was "Albert W. Zero," was released to San Francisco police after two hours, and the Secret Service said there was no indication he actually intended to harm the

The incident occurred about 10 minutes before Ford departed the St. Francis Hotel, where five weeks earlier he had been the target of an apparent assassination attempt. There was no indication that the President was aware of the incident, about a block away.

Singing "Glory, Glory Hallejulah" and rambling on about his affection for whisky, the man was taken from the Union Square Garage for questioning by Secret Service agents.

"It's a dopey gun," he yelled out as he was led away. "It doesn't fire anything - it fires dummy, dopey bullets."

The man said he pulled his play gun after an employe of the garage had threatened the President. The Secret Service said, however, there was no indication of such a threat.

'They got me handcuffed," the man said. "I tried to protect the President and they got me handcuffed."

Warren Taylor, assistant special agent in charge of the San Francisco Secret Service office, said a decision on whether to charge the man would be left up to local police.

"To the best of my knowledge he made no threatening remarks, statements or moves, or took any threatening actions directed toward the President of the United States." Taylor said.

The Secret Service said the stockily built man with a shaven head was in his late 30s or early 40s

A report that a man had been seen with a gun sent police and federal agents speeding to the garage in the securityconscious city. It was just five weeks ago that Sara Jane Moore fired a shot in the direction of President Ford as he left the St. Francis Hotel.

Thursday's incident occurred about 10 minutes before Ford's motorcade sped away from the hotel, racing at about 40 miles an hour through downtown streets on the way to San Franciso International Ford left for Milwaukee where he will address a Republican fund-raiser.

"I think he was cuckoo," Police Capt. James Curran said. "He kept saying, 'God Bless America.'" Another police captain, Jeremiah

Mafia connection in porno business

One aspect of the burgeoning pornography business that is beginning to get increasing attention is the Mafia connection.

National headquarters of the porno industry is Los Angeles. The Los Angeles police report that organized crime now controls at least 80 per cent of the porno movie business and 70 per cent of the hard-core magazine and book trade.

"These aren't guesses; we've got records to back the figures," said the chief of the L. A. department's administrative vice division in a story by the Los Angeles Times News Service. He said the situation was about the same in New York, the other smut capital of the U. S.

Two of the most lucrative porno movies in recent years, "Deep Throat" and "The Devil in Miss Jones," were distributed largely through exclusive Mafia channels, according to law enforcement officials. The latter film was briefly shown in Sedalia last year.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Paul Anthony White, who was in town Tuesday and addressed a civic club on the whole area of control of pornography and obscenity, said he also believes organized crime is tied into the production, distribution and sale of pornographic films and other materials. He said there was no evidence, however, that the Mafia was directly involved in any Sedalia episodes. One of these led to the local confiscation of a film, and the agreement by its distributor, in lieu of prosecution, to stay out of this part of Missouri.

Mafia incursions into the pornography businesses have been characterized by the usual sidelines. Killings, beatings, extortions and various other Mob specialties have been commonplace in the course of its takeover of this multi-million-dollar racket.

Regardless of one's personal opinion on the need for controlling smut, the fact that the porno pipeline is now largely operated for the sole purpose of putting more money into Mafia pockets should be reason enough for seeing that Sedalia remains free of this scourge.

Liberals 'shocked' at intelligence work

By CROSBY S. NOYES

WASHINGTON — These are hard times for the intelligence community. To judge from the expressions of horror and shock from our liberal legislators, we are back in the era of intelligence-gathering which held that "gentlemen don't read other people's mail."

Of course, it's perfectly O.K. for private citizens to steal secret government documents and deliver them by the crateful to sympathetic newspapers. But let the government be accused of reading the mail or listening to the phone calls of a few people suspected of being security risks or involved in the international drug traffic, and the foundations of our fundamental civil liberties are held to be in deadly peril.

It is very fashionable these days to be against any intelligence-gathering activity. It is even fashionable to be against national security. Everything of this sort is automatically related to the excesses of the Nixon administration in the Watergate affair. We are well on the way to a kind of reverse McCarthyism in which the most elementary activities of the various security agencies are denounced as deepdyed plots against individual freedom.

In this I suspect there is a large element of hypocrisy and political miscalculation. Americans may deplore the need for government snooping on the activities of their fellow-citizens. But most would also recognize the legitimacy of mail interception and phone taps in cases involving national security, kidnapping or organized crime.

It is hard to contend — as some liberals do — that security of communications is a constitutional right guaranteed to all citizens

From its inception, the telephone has been the most insecure means of private communication. Almost everyone over the age of 30 has lived in a community of party lines where every conversation was assumed to be monitored and in which the telephone operator was always the best-informed gal in town. In every foreign country, the tapping of resident foreigners is automatically expected.

A few years ago, I remember calling Lyndon Johnson's presidential assistant McGeorge Bundy at the White House with an indiscreet question. "Surely," said Bundy, "You can't expect an answer to that — especially over the telephone."

Much the same goes for the sanctity of the mails as an inviolable constitutional right of every American citizen. Many of those now leading the protest against the intelligence services spent plenty of disagreeable hours, as officers in the American Army in World War II, reading the letters of their own enlisted men — a duty made the more distasteful by the presumption that officers' mail was uncensored.

True, we are not in a state of war today. But the principle that the privacy of communication is subordinate to the requirements of national security — and presumably also the war against organized crime in this country — would not be seriously disputed by a great majority of American citizens.

The conflict between the rights of the individual and the rights of society, represented by a democratically elected government, is not exactly new. What is essential today is that these differing—and not always easily compatible—rights be redefined in a way which will protect honest citizens (by legal rather than political definition) without compromising the right of the state to defend itself. It is one of the more urgent tasks of the post-Watergate period.

The Mason-Dixon Line, probably the most widely known boundary line in the United States, was named after two famous mathematicians. Charles Mason and Jeremiah Dixon. The two were called in from England in 1763 to help resolve a long dispute over the measurements of boundary lines separating Pennsylvania, Delaware and Maryland. The World Almanac notes that resurveys made 200 years later proved that Mason and Dixon had determined alignments with an amazing degree of accuracy using available 18th century instruments.

Art Buchwald Passport to New York City

WASHINGTON — I decided to go to New York City the other day. After what President Ford and Secretary of the Treasury William Simon and Chairman of the Federal Reserve Board Arthur Burns have been saying about the city I first checked with the State Department to make sure that I wouldn't be jeopardizing my citizenship.

I was put in touch with someone from the passport division.

"I'd like to go to New York City," I told him, "and I was wondering if there were any restrictions on my passport for making the trip. I know we're not allowed to go to Albania, North Korea, Cuba and Uganda, but I'm not clear on what the United States policy is on New York."

"What is the purpose of your trip?" the State Department official asked me.

"Tourism," I replied. "I thought I'd catch a few shows, go to dinner at a good restaurant and maybe do a little shopping."

"At the moment the United States has no official restriction concerning an American citizen visiting New York City, but I am obligated to warn you that you'll be doing it at your own risk."

"Why is that?" I asked.

"If anything happens and the city goes down the drain we won't be able to protect you. As you know, the President has broken off all diplomatic ties with Mayor Beame and the situation is very tense. Why can't you go to China or the Soviet Union where we have good relations?"

"I'd just like to see New York," I said.
"You never know when the curtain will go down on that part of the world, and if I don't do it now I may never get another chance."

"I can appreciate your feelings on that," the State Department official said, "but I must tell you that you couldn't have picked a worse time. By visiting New York you will only be contributing to its economy and encouraging Abe Beame to stay in power. The President and the secretary of the treasury believe New York City must be taught a lesson if it ever hopes to become a part of the Free World again."

"I know what you're saying," I told the man. "But I still think a visit there won't hurt American foreign policy. I'll appreciate the United States more than ever when I get back."

"If you insist I can't stop you," the official said angrily. "But we will have to make a routine check with the FBI to make sure you have no relatives there"

sure you have no relatives there."

"But I do have relatives there. I have three sisters and an aunt."

"That puts a different light on things. How do we know you won't be blackmailed by the secret police?"

"I thought they didn't have secret police in New York any more," I said. "I heard Beame had to cut them out of his budget."

"I forgot that," the State Department official said. "By the way, you're not going with Jane Fonda are you?"

"I'd like to. I didn't know she was going."

"We have information she and Dr. Spock are planning to attend a Jets game at Shea Stadium. They expect to meet with Joe Namath."

"That's terrible," I said. "But I assure you my visit isn't political. I just want to see the Statue of Liberty and the Metropolitan Museum of Art."

"All right, bring your passport in and we'll certify it for ONE trip. But, remember, you're going to be in enemy territory and anything you say or do will reflect on the United States of America. When you come back the White House would like to debrief you."

"That's all right with me," I said. "I'll keep my eyes and ears open. If there's anything I can do to bring New York to its knees tell the President he can count on me."

Merry-go-round

Head of the LEAA a nut for fitness

By JACK ANDERSON with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Outwardly, Richard W. Velde might appear to be a mild-mannered, middle-aged bureaucrat. But behind his dark-rimmed spectacles, button-down collar and conservative-cut clothes, he has confided to associates, he possesses "the body of a 25-year-old."

He is quick to produce his medical charts, moreoever, to prove it.

Velde is boss of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, which is supposed to assist local policemen. He wants to assist them, most of all, to be youthfully strong like he is. For the 43-year-old administrator with the 25-year-old anatomy is a physical fitness freak.

He has spent huge sums of the taxpayers' money on exercise equipment and fitness programs to improve the muscle tone of the constabulary. One $541,623 grant has been set aside specifically "to promote physical fitness in police officers." An estimated $200,000 of this will be invested in exercise and medical paraphernalia.

Velde also hoped to develop, as we previously related, a Dick Tracy wristwatch, which would provide the cop on the move with a digital readout of his blood pressure, pulse rate and body temperature — in case he should wish to check on the state of his health as well as the time of day.

This $300,000 project was abruptly dropped, much to Velde's disappointment, after our story appeared. "The watch is a dead issue," an LEAA spokesman told us sadly.

Velde has also spent small sums of the taxpayers' money on his physical fitness interests. Among his body-building exercises, for instance, he has become an inveterate jogger. On the day of the Boston marathon, he arranged an official trip to Boston.

A spokesman insisted that Velde did not participate in the event but merely watched the race out of a window.

He is not so addicted to jogging, however, that he is willing to give up his limousine privileges — as Congress has called upon such government gadabouts to do. His predecessors managed to get along with whatever conveyances might be seized in drug raids. One drove a contraband Buick, another a confiscated Audi.

But Velde rides in a more stylish, black Mercury Marquis, with a telephone suitable for a busy executive. He has used his government limousine, his chauffeur has confessed to the inspector general, to haul his wife and children around.

Paradoxically, Velde claims at least one flaw in his fine physique. He insists that a tailbone ailment makes it necessary for him to fly first-class. His 43-year-old tailbone, he attests, requires the larger, luxurious seats in the first-class section.

The cause of the pain in Velde's tailbone, a spokesman explained solemnly, was too much sitting in airplanes. During the first year as LEAA's administrator, Velde spent $14,069.31 for air fare and another $2,668.47 for miscellaneous travel expenses. His trips took him from Atlanta to Alaska, New Orleans to Las Vegas, New York to Hawaii.

The soft-spoken Velde, whose lanky frame and receding hairline give him the appearance of everybody's next-door neighbor, is a protege of Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb., the Senate's self-proclaimed champion of mediocrity.

Ex-President Nixon resisted Hruska's entreaties to elevate Velde to the top of the LEAA totem pole for five years. But in he closing hours of his presidency, Nixon needed Hruska's support for an anticipated impeachment battle in the Senate.

Nixon relented at the last minute and nominated Velde to head the LEAA. It was one of Nixon's last nominations. The buffeted LEAA is still stuck with it.

Footnote: Velde is also an amateur shutterbug. Our sources say he has helped himself to LEAA's photographic equipment. This is denied by a spokesman who swore: "Velde has never had film processed for his own personal benefit. He does not have the camera at home."

But our associate, Bob Owens, checked with LEAA's audio visual department, which acknowledged that Velde checks out a Nikon camera "for a couple of weeks at a time." He also picks up film, usually about five rolls at a time. He submits the film for processing, which is done at government expense. But the audio visual people send him the developed pictures unopened.

WASHINGTON WHIRL: Sen. Paul Fannin, R-Ariz., recently pushed a bill through Congress to construct an aquaduct in arid Arizona. The project, which will be completed around 1965, will improve property values and benefit real estate brokers, including the senator's son, Tom Fannin, who runs a real estate office in Phoenix. A spokesman for the senator said he started pushing the aquaduct long before his son opened a real estate office.

Although the Supreme Court has upheld the separation of church and state, the respected Justice Potter Stewart instructed a court employe to use the court's photocopy equipment to run off hundreds of copies of religious tracts for his son, David Stewart. His predecessors managed to get along with whatever conveyances might be seized in drug raids. One drove a contraband Buick, another a confiscated Audi.

But Velde rides in a more stylish, black Mercury Marquis, with a telephone suitable for a busy executive. He has used his government limousine, his chauffeur has confessed to the inspector general, to haul his wife and children around.

Paradoxically, Velde claims at least one flaw in his fine physique. He insists that a tailbone ailment makes it necessary for him to fly first-class. His 43-year-old tailbone, he attests, requires the larger, luxurious seats in the first-class section.

The cause of the pain in Velde's tailbone, a spokesman explained solemnly, was too much sitting in airplanes. During the first year as LEAA's administrator, Velde spent $14,069.31 for air fare and another $2,668.47 for miscellaneous travel expenses. His trips took him from Atlanta to Alaska, New Orleans to Las Vegas, New York to Hawaii.

The soft-spoken Velde, whose lanky frame and receding hairline give him the appearance of everybody's next-door neighbor, is a protege of Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb., the Senate's self-proclaimed champion of mediocrity.

Ex-President Nixon resisted Hruska's entreaties to elevate Velde to the top of the LEAA totem pole for five years. But in he closing hours of his presidency, Nixon needed Hruska's support for an anticipated impeachment battle in the Senate.

Nixon relented at the last minute and nominated Velde to head the LEAA. It was one of Nixon's last nominations. The buffeted LEAA is still stuck with it.

Footnote: Velde is also an amateur shutterbug. Our sources say he has helped himself to LEAA's photographic equipment. This is denied by a spokesman who swore: "Velde has never had film processed for his own personal benefit. He does not have the camera at home."

But our associate, Bob Owens, checked with LEAA's audio visual department, which acknowledged that Velde checks out a Nikon camera "for a couple of weeks at a time." He also picks up film, usually about five rolls at a time. He submits the film for processing, which is done at government expense. But the audio visual people send him the developed pictures unopened.

WASHINGTON WHIRL: Sen. Paul Fannin, R-Ariz., recently pushed a bill through Congress to construct an aquaduct in arid Arizona. The project, which will be completed around 1965, will improve property values and benefit real estate brokers, including the senator's son, Tom Fannin, who runs a real estate office in Phoenix. A spokesman for the senator said he started pushing the aquaduct long before his son opened a real estate office.

Although the Supreme Court has upheld the separation of church and state, the respected Justice Potter Stewart instructed a court employe to use the court's photocopy equipment to run off hundreds of copies of religious tracts for his son, David Stewart. Official business was held up until the religious run was completed. Young Stewart, a volunteer, explained that the material was distributed to a children's hospital group.

We recently reported the results of a secret Environmental Protection Agency study, which stated that half the polled EPA employes believe their agency is "not doing a good job." A furious Russell Train, the EPA boss, fired off a memo to 10,600 employes assailing our article. The eightpage packet included a press release and copies of letters to editors. The cost of this effort, we have learned, was more than

Capt. C.C. Maddox of the Missouri Highway Patrol, whose office has been assisting local police in investigating the mutilations, agreed that most of the things he has seen points to animal, not human work.

"So far we have not found a mutilated animal that did not die of disease." Maddox said. "And in checking with the Kansas Bureau of Investigation we learned that every case they have investigated this year pointed to natural death.

"But all of the evidence is not in and I hesitate to go out on a limb this early and say we have the absolute answer. Part of the problem is that it is difficult for the vets to get a clear picture of what happened without the whole body-and you can't put a dead cow in the trunk of a patrol car." In some cases, however, the predator theory is not borne out by the evidence, indicating to Capt. Maddox that there may be some cases where humans were involved.

"People keep reading about these things and hearing about them from friends," the officer said. "It's not impossible that some people might say 'Hey, let's go out and do it too" just for kicks and to stir up a commotion. It could be like any other fad.'

Whatever the cause of the mutilations, the attention they have received has caused concern and sometimes even fright among many rural Missourians.

We don't know what to think," said Ernest G. Dodd, sheriff of Shelby County in northeastern Missouri. "And I'll tell you it's starting to shake people up. They're so shook up that they're starting to see flying saucers." Sheriff Dodd said the most recent flying saucer report he investigated turned out to be a rising

Dodd investigated one mutilation last Saturday at the farm of Mrs. Mary Rosendale near Emden, he said, finding an angus cow with the usual pieces miss-

"The kids found it Saturday morning," Mrs. Rosendale said. "Animals had been at it so we really couldn't tell what it died of. The thing that bothers me is that one ear was missing and it hadn't been chewed off-it was a clean cut. I try not to think about it."

Dr. Woods said he hoped his and the highway patrol's investigation will calm the fears reports of mutilations have aroused.

"We can't say we are certain at this stage," he said, "but we believe it's all a natural thing. As a rule, farmers in Missouri lose about 3 per cent of their cattle to disease each year and we haven't seen any hikes in the death rate that could be attributed to any sort of ritual killings."

That animal's left ear and horn were missing and there appeared to be a cut on the animal's stomach. Fairfax said deterioration of the carcass prevented a determination of the exact cause of the animal's death.

Brown remained in the county jail Thursday night.

Couple seeks settlement for auto accident

William and Florence Gerke, Cooper County, filed a two-count lawsuit Thursday in Pettis County Circuit Court for $150,000 and $25,000, respectively, against Roger Leon Althoff and Charles Stock Jr., both of Moniteau County.

The suit maintains that Gerke, headed east on Highway 50, was waiting to make a left turn north onto Highway 155. Althoff, driving a California Feed and Supply truck owned by Stock, ran into the rear of a car owned by Marjorie Ellen Naw, who was directly behind Gerke, the suit says. A chain reaction collision followed, the suit states, in which Gerke received bodily injuries.

The suit alleges Althoff was driving gently and seeks damages to cover the cost of the resulting hospital and doctor bills and loss of wages to Gerke and Mrs. Gerke's loss of her husband's society, companionship and earnings.

Cole Camp service station robbed

☆ Opinions Medicaid benefiting more than patients

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Health, Education and Welfare disclosed Thursday that 207 doctors in 16 states and the District of Columbia each earned more than $100,000 in public funds for treating poor Medicaid patients last

The highest amount paid was $451,156 to an unidentified physician in New York

The 207 physicians earned a total of $29.8 million in federal, state and local Medicaid funds. They represented about .2 per cent of the 99,117 physicians who treated Medicaid patients in 1974.

The disclosure was made in connection with HEW's decision to grant a freedomof-information request from the New York Daily News to release the names of 13 New Jersey doctors who earned more than $100,000 each from Medicaid.

HEW said it will disclose the names of the over-$100,000 Medicaid doctors in the other states in about two weeks.

HEW officials emphasized that the disclosure does not imply fraud or abuse of the Medicaid program by the doctors.

John A. Svahn, administrator of HEW's Social and Rehabilitation Service, said that single physicians may have submitted Medicaid claims on behalf of several physicians in a group practice who treat poverty patients. He
